Fast Mosquito

LONDON, Sept. 27.—Britain's swift Mosquito bombers attacked targets in the Rhine delta last night and early today a strong formation of American heavy bombers raided the Nazi-U-boat and ship-building centre of Emden in their building centre of Emden in their first raid on Germany in three weeks.

Canadian fighters shot down a German bomber while on patrol over Holland last night.
No losses were suffered in the night operations.
The American raid in which about 1,000 tons of explosives were dropped on targets at Emden, the fourth time U.S. aircraft attacked the northwest German port.

Yesterday U.S. bombers bombed the Champagne airfield 80 miles east of Paris and a Junkers 88 repair plant at Rheims.
DEPARTURE IN POLICY
The raid marked a radical departure from the policy heretofore employed by the Eighth U.S. Air Force of devoting its heavy bombing to point-to-point or precision raids, in which the targets were sharply delineated and the objectives of accuracy in placing explosives.

LONDON, Sept. 27.—British submarines have sunk 10

German vessels and damaged six of those attempting to evacuate troops from Corsica to the Italian mainland, the admiralty announced today.

The ships were attacked between Corsica and the Gulf of Genoa while the enemy was trying to sneak men and materials from Bastia in northeastern Corsica where they had been trapped by French troops aided by an American detachment and native patriots.

Four small supply ships, a ferry and two landing craft were sunk by gunfire from the submarines and two landing craft and a small auxiliary vessel were damaged.

A large supply ship and two smaller ones were torpedoed and sunk and a small supply ship was damaged by a torpedo. One large German tanker was hit by a torpedo and beached and another was torpedoed but it was not known whether it sank.

Wheat Loading Shows Increase This Province

While bushels of wheat loadings in Alberta for the first six months of 1943 showed a 15.6 per cent increase over loadings for the same period in 1942, value of the loadings showed a 47 per cent increase this year, W. D. King, deputy minister of trade and industry, reported Monday.

"Improvement in practically all lines of Alberta industries are noted for the first six months of this year," Mr. King said. "Grains other than wheat show even greater loading increases, with 40,000,000 bushels totalled. This figure is three times the loadings totalled for the first six months of 1942."

Increases are noted by the deputy minister in butter production and livestock marketing. Butter production for the six-month period, 17,972,000 pounds, is 13 per cent over 1942 figures, while milkings have increased from 48 per cent in the case of cattle, to 15 per cent in the case of goats. A decrease is noted, however, in the number of calves marketed.

FLOUR MILLED

Amount of flour milled this year stood at close to 1,000,000 bushels, a 61 per cent increase over the first six months of 1942. Flour is now seen in production of coal, up 15 per cent to 3,675,000 tons for the six-month period, compared to 3,192,000 tons in the same period last year.

Decreased production figures are shown in cheese and milk production, a five per cent decrease in petroleum production, 20 per cent in the case of wool, and 20 per cent for forestry products.

Petroleum figures for the first six months of 1943 total 4,441,421 barrels produced, compared to 4,847,421 in the same period last year.

Airmen Become Wood-Cutters To Keep Warm

at hand it is unlikely that military and other workmen would be available for extracting.

Last year airmen who spent their first winter at stations along the staging route came pretty close to passing in their clips on occasions through their boots to Jack Frost. It was the coldest winter on record. Wood and the only available fuel, and none had been cut in advance. Officers and men will tell you that there were a lot of teeth chattering and much shivering along the staging route last winter.

As air Vice-Marshal G. R. Howarth, M.C., who likes to keep warm as well as the next fellow, decided that this job couldn't happen again. While the air vice-marshal likes his heat, he doesn't like them frozen.

ORGANIZE UNIT

No. 4 construction and maintenance unit was formed at No. 4 training command. There are a few dozen airmen under the direction of a veteran pilot, Capt. Vincent T. Prasloski. Sgt. Prasloski was born in Poland but has lived in Canada for 20 years. He is a veteran of the Great War. He terms that all his relatives in Poland have been murdered by the Germans.

A combat was in command of a Polish submarine fighting with the United Nations. The submarine was recently lost at sea. The Germans had been 37 years in the woods.

KNOWS HIS TIMBER

He knows as much about logging that friends suspect him of being Paul Bunyan in disguise. He ran his own saw mill in the White River before the outbreak of the present war and organized the first B.C.A. woodworking unit at Camp Borden, B.C., last winter.

As they are all willing but lack the experience. Some times they get hurt and that is bad. But we'll soon have things running smoothly," Sgt. Prasloski said.

The airmen we talked with said they were really getting a big kick out of the outdoor life. The unit plans to cut and stack 1,000 cords before freeze-up.

Sgt. Prasloski is confident his boys will achieve their objective, but he hopes his crew at their building airports down the coast. Little Red Riding Hood, who we didn't mention the wolf.

German Historians

"Cautious on Facts" LONDON, Sept. 27.—(CP)—Regardless of what Hitler may think or say, German historians have decided to wait for the facts. This note of caution was observed in a Berlin radio broadcast Sunday.

"We must not be misled by the propaganda of the German press," said the broadcast, "which is not possible to issue a definite verdict on history until the war is over."

C.P.R. Workers Plan Help For Victory Loan

Under the chairmanship of George H. Baillie, general superintendent for Alberta, a committee of department heads sat with representatives of railway brotherhoods and other employees' representatives in the Palliser Hotel Calgary, Friday, formulating plans for the participation of about 7,500 Canadian Pacific Railway workers of the Alberta District in the forthcoming Fifth Victory Loan, opening Oct. 16.

W. A. Mather, vice-president of western lines was in attendance and set the objective for Canadian Pacific western lines was being increased in relation to the increase in the total objective set for the nation and employees in the west were being asked to subscribe $2,500,000.

"The expense of the war is increasing by reason of the continued expansion in the numbers in the armed forces and the heavier usage of materials and equipment occasioned by the enlarged sphere of operations," Mr. Mather said.

GREATEST EFFORT

While reports from the battle fronts are most encouraging, victory will not be ours until the enemy is completely defeated. This can only be assured by the greatest possible effort in support of those actually engaged in the enemy's fight.

The Canadian Pacific's system-wide drive will be headed by Mr. Mather heading the western campaign committee with R. Baillie, chairman of the Alberta committee at Calgary.

The district chairman, E. W. Thill, with the divisional chairman, J. M. L. McKay, superintendent, Edmonton, were present.

Route Taken

Canadians With Eighth Army Advance More Than 400 Miles From Calabria

In the following delayed dispatch Rosa Muro, Canadian Press war correspondent, gives the first account to reach Canada of the route taken by Canadian troops after they landed on the Italian toe with the British 8th Army Sept. 3 to launch the invasion of Italy. Up to this time no mention of the whereabouts of the Canadians has been made in the official communiqués—EDITOR.

By ROSS MUNRO

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, North Africa, Sept. 26.—(Delayed)—(CP Cable)—The 400-mile advance Canadian troops made from the Reggio beaches to southern Italy took them deep into the Calabrian mountains, then out to the east coast of the Italian toe and up the roads to the Gulf of Taranto.

Russian Forces Seize Suburbs Of Dnieper City

On the west bank, as the Soviet thrust mounted hourly.

ENTER WHITE RUSSIA

As the Russians were forcing the Dnieper at an unspecified number of points and Red paratroops harried the German rear, other units poured into White Russia through two gaps in the Smolensk and Gomel sectors.

The newspaper Pravda sounded a warning to Adolf Hitler that there would be no pause until the Red army reaches the old frontier and the Germans are decisively beaten.

Pounding out 12 weeks of the great summer offensive, the Red army was entrenched along practically the entire east bank of the Dnieper and was battling to hurl the Nazis out of their remaining east bank positions before Kiev, Kremenchuk, Dnepropetrovsk and Zaporozhe.

The Nazis were under constant bombardment by the Red air force which enjoyed unchallenged mastery of the skies over the battle area.

FLEE ACROSS RIVER

In the Kremenchuk area between Kiev and the river bend the Germans were reported fleeing across the Dnieper under a merciless pounding by Soviet assault planes. There and before Kiev the German remnants were reported fighting bitter delaying actions to cover the retreat to the west bank.

The battle of Dnepropetrovsk appeared to have entered a decisive stage as the Russians smashed the last belt of German defences based on the marshes flanking the approaches to the town. Bloody hand to hand combats were raging in the eastern suburbs of the city.

On the plains southeast of Zaporozhe the Red army swept over a wide area, increasing the threat to the Crimea.

Front dispatches said Soviet flanking columns were pushing across the river north and south of Kiev, Russia's third largest city, in face of murderous German artillery fire from the high west bank. There was no authoritative indication that the Red army yet had established a bridgehead in force.

SET UP BRIDGEHEADS

The London radio quoted a Moscow dispatch as saying that the Russians were believed to have established small bridgeheads on the west bank of the Dnieper between Kiev and Dnepropetrovsk.

The German DNB agency reported that Russian paratroops landed in the German rear in the middle Dnieper area. Most were encircled and annihilated, the agency said in a Berlin broadcast, but others were still holding out.

A Moscow broadcast heard in London quoted the Moscow newspaper Pravda as saying that the Red army had "mastered part of the river crossing" and added: "Our air force and artillery will smash all German efforts to stem our offensive beyond the river."

Other Soviet troops engaged in fighting with the Germans in the muddy eastbank suburbs of Kiev. The Germans threw big infantry and tank forces into battle in a futile attempt to stem the Soviet tide only to be broken back. More than 800 Germans were killed and five tanks wrecked.

OTHER ADVANCES

The Russians also blasted their way in the Dnieper at key points along a 300-mile stretch from Kiev to Zaporozhe. Near Kremenchuk, 85 miles upstream from Dnepropetrovsk, the Russians smashed an enemy pocket of resistance, captured 70 houses and villages and then the halting German remnants threw the Dnieper.

More than 600 enemy bodies remained on the battlefield and in addition a large number of German soldiers drowned in the river. A Soviet communiqué said: "Fourteen guns and many other arms thrown away by the Germans during their precipitate retreat were captured by our troops."

Six-Foot Soldiers Make Up This Canadian Army Guard

This guard of a Canadian infantry brigade, lined up for inspection in one of the Mediterranean war theatres where Canadian troops are serving, is no small affair as anyone can see. All its members stand six feet tall or over. On extreme right of the party is the Brigade Sergeant Major, W. R. Armstrong of Toronto.

who fear that Admiral Karl Doenitz, commander of the German navy, is planning to use the fleet for a suicide venture against the British fleet.

The German navy may have been preparing to fight one big battle against heavy odds rather than face the ignominious and which came to the fleet in the 1918 scuttling at Scapa Flow.

German sources mentioned at Kiel in 1918, just before the end of the First Great War, after orders were issued for the German fleet to put to sea for a final do-or-die engagement with the British navy.

The Tirpitz has not so far managed to break out into the Atlantic to take part in the war against Allied convoys. Her sister ship, the Bismarck, was sunk in the Atlantic in May, 1941, shortly after the Bismarck had sent the British battleship Hood to the bottom.

The Scharnhorst, along with the cruiser Prinz Eugen, made a daring break from Brest early in 1942, fleeing through the English channel to the North Sea. Though both ships were heavily attacked by R.A.F. planes, they completed the hazardous trip, aided by a strong air umbrella of German fighters and by stormy weather.

There has been considerable official speculation of an attempted break out in force to attack the Allied supply routes to Russia which would have involved the British home fleet in a huge great battle which resulted in the destruction of the Bismarck and the Cruiser Prinz Eugen.

POSSIBLE CAUSE

Such a chase probably would end in another big naval engagement which came to the fleet in the 1918 scuttling at Scapa Flow.

Germans Taking Drastic Action To Stiffen Home Front Moral

By EDWIN SHANKE

STOCKHOLM, Sept. 22.—(AP)

—The Nazis are using drastic measures in an effort to stiffen morale on the home front, shot through with defeatism, corruption and confusion as a result of mass-scale air raids.

The formal placement of full police powers in the hands of

and the possibility of such action might have prompted the reported sabotage.

For more than a year the Tirpitz, the Scharnhorst, the Luet-ow at least two cruisers of the 10,000-ton Hipper class and a number of fast, powerful destroyers have been held in the Trondheim area throughout constant patrol action by the British home fleet and planes of the fleet air arm. It is known that the German fleet recently has been engaging in extensive gunnery practice.

The Germans reported last week that a small British submarine

snaked into a Norwegian harbor in an attempt to attack the Tirpitz.

The report said the attempt failed, the submarine was sunk and the crew taken prisoner. The report was without confirmation in London.

STOCKHOLM, Sept. 22.—(AP)

The best available sources of information provided no confirmation today for reports that rebellious

German crews sabotaged three capital ships of the Nazi fleet off

Norway after they received news of the Italian fleet's surrender.

But perhaps more important is the effect on soldiers at the front, who are worrying about relatives and friends in the bombed cities.

Industry is helping win the war...

Industry must help build a peacetime world

After the war is decisively won...

what kind of world is essential for a just and durable peace?

This question is being asked today everywhere in the world. No expert is needed to tell you the answer.

It must be a world as peaceful and neighbourly as your own town; a world in which decent people can bring up their children decently. It must be a busy world where factories and farms are working and where there are jobs for all.

How can such a world be brought into being? The surest way is to think and talk about it. Full and complete discussions on the porches of this country, over its fences, in churches, schools, clubs, and always at meals—that is how the terms of A JUST AND DURABLE PEACE can be formulated.

In your discussions keep in mind this fact; your terms of peace must be such that the people of other lands can agree with them. There must be provision in your plans for sustained production and for consumption of that production.

Only a world peace that squares with the conscience of men of good will can be just. Only a just peace can endure.

Suggest Poll For Candidate Hall of Fame

KINGSTON, Ont., Sept. 27.—(CP)—A suggestion that the Canadian Press conduct a poll of sports writers in Canada and the United States to determine candidates for a Hockey Hall of Fame was made at a weekend meeting here in which plans were discussed to establish the shrine of hockey in Kingston. Officials attending the meeting suggested that the poll be taken under supervision of a board composed of writers in the major hockey cities of the two countries.

The shrine will be modeled after the Hall of Fame of baseball at Cooperstown, N.Y. Although work can not be started until after the war, it was recommended that the hall be housed in a mammoth sports centre that would include a hockey arena, stadium and accommodation for other sports. In the meantime, a temporary location for the shrine will be chosen.

Stuart Crawford of Kingston was elected president of an organization, as yet unnamed, to deal with establishment of the shrine. Several committees were named, including honorary presidents elected, including cabinet ministers and prominent hockey officials from all parts of Canada and some cities in the United States.

At Capt. Suberland's suggestion, a board of governors was named to have jurisdiction over the selection of members of the Hall of Fame or to devise a method for selection of members and rules.

Named to the board were Lester Patrick, manager of the New York Rangers of the N.H.L.; Mervyn Dattin, managing director of the N.H.L.; Frank Sargent, C.A.H.A. president; W.A. Hewitt, secretary of the Ontario Hockey Association; Hugh O'Meara, sports editor of the Montreal Star; J. P. Fitzgerald, sports editor of the Toronto Evening Telegram; and Archie Coe, news editor of the Winnipeg Free Press.

HALIFAX DECIDES PROTEST DECISION

HALIFAX, Sept. 27.—(CP)—The National Hockey League and the C.A.H.A. in choosing Kingston, Ont., as the site for Canada's hockey hall of fame, based their decision on incomplete and inaccurate information, was the opinion expressed by Hon. Harold Connors, minister of industry and information for Nova Scotia, in a telegram received by the Halifax hockey hall of fame committee.

The minister, now in Montreal to investigate the matter advised the Halifax committee to protest the decision and file a brief in support of the Atlantic sports claim on the north of hockey.

The committee at a meeting late Saturday decided to follow the minister's advice.

Yanks Celebrate Championship By Trimming Indians Twice

NEW YORK, Sept. 27.—(AP)—The Yankees wasted little time yesterday celebrating their Saturday clinching of the American League pennant. They handed the third-place Cleveland Indians a pair of defeats before a crowd of 21,328.

As in Saturday's winning struggle with Detroit Tigers, the Yankees were hand pressed all the way, but delivered in the end. They took the opener 3-2 on Charley Keller's ninth-inning homer, and the second game 5-1 in ten innings on a single by pinch hitter Chuck Stabinchuk.

Keller also blasted a circuit clout in the eighth to boost his total to 21 for the season, but failed to gain on the league-leader Yogi Berra, who has 23.

Footsteps in the Fog

By Elinore Cowan Stone

YESTERDAY: When Deborah stepped from the first class she found that the first evening with Stephen was entirely uneventful. Except that he seemed to know all the best places to eat and dance and to have unlimited money to spend. It might have been an evening with any American college boy.

CHAPTER III

In spite of Angela's dire hints, that first evening with Stephen proved entirely uneventful. Except that he seemed to know all the best places to eat and dance and to have unlimited money to spend. It might have been an evening with any American college boy.

Before long, few evenings passed that Deborah and Stephen did not go their class notes together—or perhaps just walk for hours, sometimes hardly talking at all.

Without touching her—except in dancing, or helping her with her wrap or into a car—without a trace of love-making being his ingenious pleasure in being with her, he somehow managed to make their casual companionship more exciting than any other man had ever made.

A violent courtship, Deborah hardly understood why, unless it was that each time you were with him, you were sure something was going to happen; and that it didn't, you were equally sure it would next time.

Angela kept up a running fire of gossip and warning.

"You're certainly causing a sensation," she said one evening as Deborah was dressing to go out.

"How so?" Deborah asked lightly, wondering if he ought to wear the white and silver frock again or not.

"They say that half the females on the campus have been trying to get your fair-haired boy, but he won't have any one but you. I suppose you're a little bit of a mystery."

"Can Junior come out? We need a tackling dummy!"

Angela kept up a running fire of gossip and warning.

"You're certainly causing a sensation," she said one evening as Deborah was dressing to go out.

"How so?" Deborah asked lightly, wondering if he ought to wear the white and silver frock again or not.

that he was amazed and enraptured by American slang, which he used constantly—often with devastating comic effect.

When he and Angela chanced to meet, he hung upon her words with the breathless reverence of a disciple in the presence of a great master.

Yet under his almost reckless gaiety, his enthusiasm about all sorts of queer things, and an unflinching courage and consideration beyond his years, Deborah kept catching upon unexpected walls of reserve, as if, beneath the light-hearted boy he seemed to be, there were another man—sterner, bolder, perhaps even a little ruthless.

At such times, Deborah remembered with an uneasiness she never entirely understood, her troubled impression of that first evening in the fog—that of a man eager to record all the happenings of a lifetime into one short space of irresponsible gaiety.

It was late in the term when she first began to guess where all this was leading her.

That was the day when Stephen was late to class. It was not until she saw Angela's eyes watching her veiled amusement across the seminar table—and the page in her own notebook, inscribed with meaningless doodle instead of Doctor Brooks' trenchant comments on King Lear—that she realized how feverishly all her attention had been centered upon the door.

When after an interminable age, the door opened, and he did come in, she found herself caught up in a wave of relief so warm and glad that she could only think confusedly.

"What has happened to me?—I mustn't let it matter so much—just that he's here. Being beside him after all, I shall probably never see him again after this spring."

"I never intended it to mean so much as this."

It was that night, while Deborah, comfortable in pajamas and mules, was putting the finishing touches to a letter, that Angela came from an evening at the movies. She sat down on Deborah's bed without removing her hat.

"How was the picture?" Deborah asked absently.

"Oh, just another 'Boy-Meets-Girl' Ange said. She yawned, and added, with casualness, But there was a news reel that had fascinated you."

Deborah glanced up, startled. Angela's eyes were fastened upon her face with that wide, innocent attention from which Deborah had never been able to escape.

"Angela, obviously, was burning with news—and all of it had."

"Deborah got up, and going to the dressing-table, picked up a bar of creaming soap, wondering why her fingers were suddenly cold and tremble."

"Remember," Ange was going on, "that Bund meeting that was broken up by a riot last week?"

Well, they showed a picture of that—just before the picture came. And who do you suppose was there, right in line with the camera?"

Deborah stood very still until she saw her face was quite steady. "It couldn't have been the picture came. Adolf, in person, I suppose?" she was able to ask lightly. "Not all right?"

The first title to be decided in the summer session of the national tournament held in New York recently was the national mixed team-of-four championship.

In winning this event, Mrs. Olive Peterson of Philadelphia became a Life Master Off the 37 Life Masters.

Mrs. Peterson, the fourth woman to achieve that outstanding, was a bit puzzled at having to admit to herself that the fact that she had not been kissed was not in the least due—as it had often been with other men—to her own adroit handling of a difficult situation.

The situation simply had not arisen.

No doubt, she thought wryly, he was after all just another earnest young foreigner interested in polishing up his English small talk.

Thirping people, these Germans.

For after a month of almost constant companionship she knew little more about Stephen than she had guessed in the beginning.

She did know that he could laugh and kick up his heels as irrepressibly as any American boy of 24 or 25, that he was surprisingly well informed on a variety of subjects that he had an insatiable curiosity about American institutions, and that he was a bit puzzled at having to admit to herself that the fact that she had not been kissed was not in the least due—as it had often been with other men—to her own adroit handling of a difficult situation.
